

All the benefits of a private education... for less money than a public college

Health Horizons, a leading home health nursing agency and provider of medical equipment since 1997, formally announces the opening of its new School of Health Sciences, Health Horizons Academy. The new vocational school, scheduled to commence its first trimester of classes on May 23, 2011, was specially founded to help prospective students meet the challenging prerequisites of their chosen field of study.

"Health Horizons decided to create this academy because we had so many Nurse Aides and PCAs (Personal Care Aides) working for us that wanted to pursue a career in nursing, but they didn't know how or where to start," said Kevin Large, Founder and Administrator of Health Horizons. "A number of obstacles were holding them back...a lack of education, outdated course credits, trouble with math and science, fears of not remembering how to study, and money...to name a few. Health Horizons Academy gives these people another chance by focusing on their individual needs and helping them, every step of the way, to get admitted into the allied health care school of their choice."

The new academy's training will be primarily geared toward health care. Therefore, its programs will serve as a valuable "springboard" for anyone wishing to begin a career in Nursing, Dental Hygiene, Optometry, Physical Therapy, or any other medically related field. There is an urgent need for health care professionals nationwide, and Health Horizons Academy helps aspiring students fulfill their educational goals with the provision of prerequisite classes. By participating in the academy's complete program, its students can be finished and ready to enter the health care school of their choice in just one year, which is the equivalent of three trimesters.

To ensure that its students meet their goals, Health Horizons Academy offers several unique educational approaches. All of its teaching staff meet the VA Council on Higher Education guidelines and are trained in bringing students up-to-speed on effective studying habits and test taking. Classes are then conducted in a tutoring style fashion, providing more one-on-one attention and training where needed.

In order to further assist Hampton Roads residents in pursuing their career dreams during this trying recession, Health Horizons Academy has set its tuition rates at just $85.00 per credit hour - a lower cost than most other educational institutions in the region. A 10% tuition discount is also offered to employees of Health Horizons Home Care, the school's founding company, providing the perfect opportunity for people that want to work around their class hours!
